RE: DOCKET 02-278

Dear FCC,

The rules for regulating "junk" faxes needs to be stricter. Fines for sending unsolicited faxes should be increased to at least $1,000.00.

Many junk faxes are hard to figure out who sent the fax. In order for the consumers to file charges, they must know the person's name and address. The consumer cannot figure this out most of the time just from the phone number the junk fax sender called from or what is posted on the fax.

Please register my public opinions under docket 02-278. Thank you.

Sincerely,

William McMullin
